

'Grooming underage girls': Investigation into Oregon school shooting turns focus onto satanic cult

October 22, 2026 World Net Daily reported: "The focus in an investigation into the Bend, Oregon, school shooting that left three children, an adult, and the attacker dead now includes a violent satanic cult, according to reports. A report from PJMedia cited revelations from independent reporter Andy Ngo as well as Oregon Public Broadcasting that were saying investigators are following leads to determine if the shooter was associated with the "notorious 764 Cult."

A former special education student at Silver Rail Elementary School identified by authorities as Griffin J. John II, 16, shot his way through a school-shooter deterrent door and killed three children, ages 5, 7, and 11, and a 25-year-old teacher. Two others were injured, and reports said, "Federal authorities have prioritized prosecutions of the leaders of this cult, which they describe as 'an international child exploitation enterprise known as '764,' a nihilistic violent extremist (NVE) network."

PJMedia explained last year several leaders of the cult were prosecuted for international child exploitation. Ngo reported just weeks ago that a "transgender member of a violent satanic death cult network was sentenced to 77 years in federal prison Wednesday after pleading guilty to sexually exploiting and terrorizing underage girls around the world and grooming them into mutilating themselves and torturing animals to death."

PJMedia noted, "The 764 cult lives on Discord, gaming, and dark web chat sites. The group has the objective of 'seeking to destroy civilized society through the corruption and exploitation of vulnerable populations, which often include minors..."

'Things are about to get spicy': Pete Hegseth quietly meets Netanyahu as Trump weighs massive new Iran offensive October 21, 2026 World Net Daily reported: "Defense Secretary Pete Hegseth quietly traveled to Israel on Monday to meet with Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu as President Donald Trump weighs another major military offensive against Iran.

The unannounced visit took place just eight days before Israel's parliamentary elections and roughly two weeks before America's midterms. The meeting occurred amid discussions between Washington and Jerusalem about potentially resuming large-scale military operations against Iran, Axios reported, citing two sources familiar with the matter.

Hegseth met Netanyahu at Ovda Air Base in southern Israel, where American fighter jets and aerial refueling aircraft are deployed, Axios reported, citing two sources.

The Pentagon referred to a recent X post showing Hegseth visiting American troops at Ovda Air Base in southern Israel, where U.S. fighter jets and refueling aircraft are deployed.

"Things are about to get spicy," a senior military official familiar with the situation recently told the Daily Caller News Foundation, suggesting American operations against Iran could soon intensify. The Israeli Embassy in Washington did not immediately respond to a request for comment..."

El-Sayed: Israel and Iran Like if Your Friend Poked a Bear, 'Both' Caused Danger, Israel 'Not Actually Our Friend'

October 20, 2026 Breitbart reported: "During an interview with ABC News released on Monday, Michigan Democratic U.S. Senate nominee Abdul El-Sayed responded to a question on why he believes it's so ridiculous to ask him if he believes Iran is a bigger threat than Israel by using an analogy where "Your friend and you are taking a hike in the woods and you see a bear and your friend goes and pokes the bear and now you're running from the bear. Is it your friend or the bear who caused the danger? I'd say it's both." He also said that "I think we live, right now, in a world that has more war in it because of both the actions of Israel and Iran and us." And "Israel is not actually our friend."

Host Linsey Davis asked, "When you were recently asked at the debate if Israel or Iran is a greater threat to the United States, you described it as a ridiculous hypothetical. But, just to have the conversation, to understand, what do you think is ridiculous about asking a prospective senator about the greatest threats to this country?"

El-Sayed answered, "Well, Linsey, let's say this: Your friend and you are taking a hike in the woods and you see a bear and your friend goes and pokes the bear and now you're running from the bear. Is it your friend or the bear who caused the danger? I'd say it's both. So, I just think that there's this idea of like, who's more, as if we're grading risks. And I think we live, right now, in a world that has more war in it because of both the actions of Israel and Iran and us. And I would rather that we were not fighting stupid wars that are raising our gas prices. I would rather we are not fighting stupid wars that make it so that we can't afford a second bag of groceries. And people don't want to talk about the fact that it was the Israeli prime minister who has been trying to get an American president to fight this war for the better part of 40 years, who finally found a president dumb enough to do it. And here we are, fighting this war that we can't get out of. So, to argue that, somehow, this war is not in part, or in large part because of Israel is just not paying attention to the facts. So, I would rather our tax dollars not be spent buying 2,000-pound bombs to the tune of $2.8 billion, when the kids in either The Soo or the city of Detroit go to schools that deserve so much more of that funding. And I don't think an ally who uses you as a shield in war is actually an ally. And I think the broader part of the American public agrees with me on that."

Davis followed up, "So, you don't consider Israel to be an American ally?"

El-Sayed responded, "An ally that takes your money to push you into wars you shouldn't be fighting is not an ally. It's like, do you have kids? And if you have — your kid has a friend who keeps bumming off their money and then talks about them behind their back and then gets them into fights with other friends, what would you tell your kid to do with that friend? You'd probably tell them, maybe it's not actually your friend. I think it's time for us to realize that, like, Israel is not actually our friend..."

U.S. issues rare security warning for Americans in these 12 Mideast countries

October 19, 2026 World Net Daily reported: "U.S. embassies across the Middle East issued identical red alert security warnings on Monday, advising American citizens to exercise extreme vigilance.

American citizens in Israel, Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Lebanon, Jordan, Qatar, Bahrain, Kuwait, Oman, the United Arab Emirates (UAE), Yemen and Iran received these warnings, Euronews reported. The security alerts stemmed from risks pertaining to the Iran war and the escalating Houthi situation.

The State Department did not immediately respond to the Daily Caller News Foundation's request for comment.

"Iran and groups supportive of Iran may target other U.S. interests overseas or at locations associated with the U.S and Americans throughout the world, including U.S. businesses and other institutions," the alert warned. The alert also warned U.S. citizens of travel disruptions including flight cancellation and airspace closures due to a risk of military escalation associated with the Yemeni Houthis and the Iran War, according to Euronews..."

Israel 'took the land' from Palestinians, has 'ceded moral ground,' Obama tells Belfast crowd

October 15, 2026 The Jerusalem Post reported: "Former US president Barack Obama said on Tuesday that Israel "took land off people and they were excessive," in reference to Israel's treatment of the Palestinian people throughout the history of the nation. Obama made his comments while visiting Belfast, Northern Ireland, to receive an honorary doctorate from Queen's University Belfast.

In a conversation with journalist Susan McKay, the former president referred to the Palestinians' reaction to the Jewish people's exerting cultural and military control over the State of Israel by explaining that "those people understandably said, 'This is injustice, and I want my land back.'"

McKay asked Obama about the current state of the conflict in the Middle East surrounding the State of Israel. The hostility toward Israel after the October 7 massacre was an indication that a "genuine cessation" was needed in order for long-term solutions to be implemented, the former president responded. "The fact is," Obama explained, "that the Jewish people, for millennia, were oppressed, discriminated against, killed. Europe was responsible for much of it. They understandably sought a refuge."

"If the attitude of Israel is, now that we are the strongest, the most technologically advanced in the region, then our security will depend on us simply doing whatever we need and taking whatever we want, and not making any concessions to anyone," Obama continued. "That may work short-term... but you have ceded moral ground if that is the position you take."...

"The citizenry of Israel has to rethink, to reimagine, how your children and grandchildren are going to live in this region. Are you just going to be behind walls and wipe out everybody around you, or are you going to find some just way of defending yourself while still acting in an ethical, moral way?" the former president said..."
