Putin declares Russia 'ready for war' with Europe but warns there'll be 'no winners'

October 29, 2026 mirror.co.uk reported: “Vladimir Putin said Russia is ready for a war with Europe but warned that "there will be no winners".

Russia President Vladimir Putin

The chilling remarks were made at a press conference today, during which the Russian President also revealed he has held conversations with Finnish President Alexander Stubb and Norwegian Prime Minister Jonas Gar Støre.

Putin said he welcomed the calls as a step in the right direction and explained the initiative came from the European leaders. He did not, however, provide any further details about what the discussions with the two Scandinavian leaders entailed.

Putin claimed Europe has failed to achieve its goal of defeating Russia and that this is unlikely to happen by 2030. He said: "Many people are constantly talking about preparing for war by 2030. Is this right or wrong? First of all, we are ready, but we don't want any war with Europe…”

With 90% of votes counted, Netanyahu bloc has 53 seats, Eisenkot’s 48; Arab parties surge to 19

October 28, 2026 timesofisrael.com reported: “The Central Elections Committee (CEC) said Wednesday afternoon that with 89.8 percent of ballots counted, the bloc led by Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu was poised to win 53 seats in the 120-member Knesset and the bloc led by Yashar party chair Gadi Eisenkot would win 48 seats, leaving both blocs far from a 61-seat majority.

The two predominantly Arab parties were poised to win a record 19 seats between them, putting them in a potential kingmaker position, after Arab voters turned out in record numbers to vote in Tuesday’s election, hoping to oust Netanyahu and his far-right allies from the seat of power. Their previous high had been 15 seats.

The picture that was emerging by Wednesday evening was different from the one that had been painted in most mainstream polls in the weeks and months leading up to the election, which had almost all shown Eisenkot’s bloc taking the lead over Netanyahu’s with varying margins, though similarly without either having a clear path to a coalition.

It was also a reversal from Tuesday night’s exit polls published by major broadcasters the moment voting ended at 10 p.m., which showed Eisenkot’s bloc ahead of Netanyahu’s by two or three seats. But as the count progressed overnight and into Wednesday afternoon, it appeared that the exit polls had missed the mark, as both Netanyahu’s party and bloc pulled ahead of Eisenkot’s…”

Terrifying secret clauses inside Anthropic's own IPO filings reveal how AI tech may destroy the world

October 26, 2026 dailymail.com reported: “Anthropic's own IPO pitch deck to prospective stock owners has revealed the terrifying anxieties its bosses have about where the technology may take humanity.

The AI company is poised to have the biggest ever initial public offering on Wall Street after filing to go public on Monday, with a valuation tipped to reach up to $2 trillion.

However, Anthropic's IPO prospectus goes into an unnerving amount of detail over philosophical and moral conundrums - which is not typical for most normal companies registering on the stock market.

The super intelligence firm, headed by intensely safety-focused Dario Amodei, sprinkled their sales pitch with anxious disclaimers about AI's ruinous potential. Amodei and his six co-founders warned: 'Sufficiently advanced AI systems could, if not developed, deployed, and operated with appropriate safeguards, oversight, and security measures, pose catastrophic or existential risks to humanity.'

Anthropic starts its prospectus to potential investors: 'We believe that AI is one of the most consequential technologies in human history.' But the doubt already seeps in: 'If managed well, it could rapidly accelerate scientific innovation, greatly increase economic growth rates, bring cures for major diseases within reach, and solve problems that have resisted generations of human effort.'

The prospectus, filled with colorful graphics of cells and circular scientific artwork ahead of 335 pages of text, laid bare the risks of AI in daunting detail.

It reads: 'To build AI is to harness cognition itself, and anything so powerful can be used for ill as well as good.

'Anthropic is a deeply values-driven organization, founded in large part to help the world realize AI's benefits and avoid its dangers.'…It reads: 'Authoritarian governments may use AI to create high-tech surveillance states, deepen repression, and make themselves much more difficult to dislodge. 'AI can be misused by those who wish to do harm, for example to conduct cyberattacks or to design biological weapons.' …"

Iran's Target List: Tehran Declares American Diplomats 'Fair Game' as Midterms Near

October 25, 2026 israel365news.com reported: "Nine days before Americans go to the polls, officials of Iran's Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps have told The New York Times that American diplomats are now "fair game." The admission came hours after America's top intelligence official warned that Iranian plots to kill U.S. officials have reached "advanced stages" in the Middle East and beyond.

It caps a campaign that runs from murder-for-hire contracts on Trump administration officials to a €50 million bounty bill in Iran's parliament, and its target is clear: President Donald Trump and the Republicans who took the Islamic Republic to war. On that goal, the ayatollahs have found a chorus of support on the American far left.

Director of National Intelligence Jay Clayton laid out the threat in a one-page unclassified memo to Secretary of State Marco Rubio, first reported by Axios. "Specifically, through various channels, we have received intelligence that Iran has substantially increased efforts to target U.S. personnel," the memo states. "The lethal plotting efforts by the Iranians against U.S. citizens have reached advanced stages in both the Middle East and certain other countries." …"

Reporter's Notebook: France braces for more unrest after parts of Paris spun out of control

October 23, 2026 foxnews.com reported: "Paris is burning. Yet again. But this time, according to officials and analysts, it's different. And unrest here could have a lasting impact on France… perhaps the world.

Protest riots underway in Paris, France

I have been covering protests in France for decades. I lived in Paris for nine years. I know that the French are very skilled at taking politics to the street. The recent upheaval has many worried.

When I approached the bar at a brasserie near Place de la Republique, the server asked if I was an American and a journalist. After replying yes to both he concluded, "So you've come to cover the civil war."

The numbers tell the tale. Some 2,500 arrests during the last weekend of clashes between protesters and police. Around 1,000 officers injured. Many hurt, some seriously, on the activists' side. And about 3,000 businesses impacted, trashed, looted. Damage estimated over one billion dollars.

What was most striking were the attacks on official buildings. An historic city hall in Limoges. A police headquarters in crime-ridden Marseille. An important tourist office in Lyon. Symbols of a French government under siege.

The mostly peaceful protests supporting recent student concerns, as well as working and middle-class economic worries, hijacked by those bent on anarchy. And opportunistic young crooks looking for cheap thrills.

Yes, there are immigrants and foreigners amid the rabble. Plus, those said to have ties with so-called "ultra-left" groupings. But this remains a very French uprising. Which in a way makes it even more unsettling. Nearly ten years of rule by President Emmanuel Macron has left this country more divided, with promises unfilled, anger near the surface. And violence a real danger…"

Israel's new space division enters heavenly battlefield the Bible described 3,000 years ago

October 23, 2026 israel365news.com reported: "The Israel Defense Forces has appointed the first commander of a new Space Division, formally declaring space an active battlefield and placing Israel among the handful of nations organizing their militaries to fight beyond the atmosphere.

Defense Minister Israel Katz welcomed the move on Tuesday, calling it the beginning of "blue-and-white Star Wars." The Bible described this battlefield long before Israel launched its first satellite: in the Song of Deborah, the stars fought from their courses against Israel's enemies, and one star, Meroz, was cursed for refusing to join the battle.

The new commander, Brig. Gen. "Shin," identified only by the first letter of his name in Hebrew, was selected on Monday night at a senior appointments meeting chaired by IDF Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Eyal Zamir…The military said it has identified space as an active combat domain, one that will expand as a military arena in the coming years and that carries national significance..."
