'Tell Trump!' Watch fervent Muslim tell Americans to their faces the goal is to make the U.S. an Islamic state

November 12, 2026 WorldNetDaily reported: "A video featuring a fervent Muslim man in Columbus, Ohio, telling Americans to their faces that the U.S. will assuredly become an Islamic state is going viral and prompting strong reactions. "Islam is coming to America!

It is coming!" the Muslim shouts at the outset of the 36-second clip posted Tuesday on TikTok by the Rubin Report, already collecting more than 112,000 likes and 10,000 comments. "One day, America will become a Muslim state, a Muslim country," he proclaims. "Tell Trump! Yes, it will happen."

A young American man tries to toss cold water on the prediction, saying: "That's never gonna happen."

"God is powerful," the Muslim responds. "Our goal is to make America Islam, Islamic state."

"It's never gonna happen," the young American stresses again. The Islamic champion then asks back: "You control the heart of Americans?"

The American man replies: "Over my dead body will this become an Islamic country."

Wall Street Apes on X reposted the TikTok video, and added its own commentary, saying: "This is getting serious. We're hearing Muslims repeat this same thing in essentially every state of America, and they're all saying that they will conquer us. They will take over our country and they will install Sharia law."

Shock Poll: One in Five College Students Say U.S. Deserved 9/11, Nearly Half Want Socialism

November 11, 2026 Breitbart reported: "A shock survey reveals more than one in five college students say the U.S. deserved the September 11, 2001 terrorist attack that killed nearly 3000 people while targeting the World Trade Center and the Pentagon. The stunning findings do not stop there, with nearly half of the respondents saying they would rather live under socialism and a plurality reporting that Palestine would be a better ally of the U.S. than Israel.

As the New York Post put it in a report on the poll Wednesday, "Hasan Piker has lots of company," a reference to the radical left podcaster who played a far-left part in Tuesday's midterm elections by promoting and supporting successful socialist candidates.

Some 22% of participants surveyed by the Buckley Institute agreed that "America deserved Sept. 11," while another 72 percent disagreed with the statement with six percent "unsure", according to the poll, which surveyed 803 American undergraduates. Ironically, those students were not even born in 2001 to witness the devastating attacks …Still, their views were in line with caustic U.S. bashers such as such as Piker, who reportedly said back 2019 that America "deserved 9/11" and more recently alleged that the U.S. forces have committed more terrorism than al Qaeda.

Hostility toward Israel has grown in the past year as well, the survey confirming the anecdotal evidence of frequent pro Palestine demonstrations seen on campuses throughout the U.S. When asked which country is a better ally for the United States, 38% said Palestine and 25 percent said Israel, a 9-point shift away from the Jewish state compared to last year, the annual survey reported.

When it came to economic systems, those students also echoed Piker, who generated headlines campaigning with successful Michigan Democratic senate candidate Abdul El-Sayed. They were asked, "If you had to choose, which economic system would you prefer to live under?" the Post reported. "The result: 42% of students said they would rather live under a socialist system, versus just 28% preferring a capitalist one and the remaining 30% had no opinion" …Nearly half of the students — 47 percent — said they agreed with the statement, "While socialist countries like Cuba and the Soviet Union have not been perfect, they offer a better economic model than capitalist countries like the United States," according to the tabloid…"

Thankfulness Tracks With Better Health Across 57 Countries, Study Finds

November 11, 2026 studyfinds.com reported: "Feeling thankful tends to go hand in hand with better health, but the reason may have less to do with being generous than with feeling looked after. A study of more than 148,000 people in 57 countries found that grateful people did help others more often, yet feeling supported was the steadier link to better health.

Researchers drew on two large surveys: one fielded during the COVID-19 pandemic and another from the Global Flourishing Study, which checked in with the same people a year apart. In both, people who reported more gratitude also reported better physical health and well-being, matching earlier research. What had been unclear was why, and whether the pattern holds in every country, since earlier cultural comparisons mostly pitted European Americans against East Asians or Asian Americans. The results appear in the Journal of Happiness Studies…"

Christian Persecution Worsening Around the World

November 9, 2026 answersingenesis.org reported: "The persecution and oppression of our brothers and sisters in Christ around the world is getting worse, according to a report from Aid to the Church in Need UK. This report on the persecuted church found the "oppression of Christians has worsened in 55% of countries . . . without any country showing an improvement."

According to the report, which looked at persecution between August 2024 and June 2026, Christians "are being forced from their homes through conflict, extremism, and religiously motivated violence in 18 countries across Africa, Asia, the Middle East, and Latin America." This means 220 million Christians are "directly exposed to persecution worldwide."

The report listed a few examples of what this persecution looks like: Chinese authorities have intensified their oppression of Christians, as they aim to align religious doctrine more closely with communist principles. This has led to mass detentions, clergy being jailed on legal technicalities, churches closing, and online religious content being controlled. The report tells of persecution in Nicaragua, where the regime increased its crackdown on Christians, arresting and exiling clergy, preventing ordinations, seizing Church institutions, and preventing people entering the country with Bibles…"

Top reactions from Christian leaders to 'catastrophe' of midterms: 'We are under God's judgment'

November 9, 2026 The Christian Post reported: "The midterm elections delivered a devastating generational defeat to the Republican Party as Democrats swept races coast to coast last week, regaining both houses of Congress, flipping six governors' offices and seizing hundreds of seats in state legislatures.

Evangelical voter turnout saw a marked decline this year compared to previous elections, leaving some Christians reeling from the overwhelming victory of the Democratic Party, which some discern has grown overtly hostile to Biblical Christianity as it cozies up to far-left socialism, LGBT ideology and Islam.

"It is heartbreaking that the Evangelical vote did not show up this year. The sad result is hundreds of pro-abortion, LGBTQ advocates and antisemites just won races all over America," Gary Bauer, president of the Virginia-based conservative advocacy organization American Values, told All Israel News. "The church is committing political suicide," he added…"

Someone Is Causing Chaos Across Europe. The Question Is: Who?

November 7, 2026 The *Wall Street Journal reported: "An escalating dirty-tricks campaign has rattled Europe this week, leaving government officials and company executives convinced a barrage of bomb threats and cyberattacks is coordinated. The thing they can't figure out: Who is behind it?

UK riots

It started on Monday with supermarkets tossing out bags of meatballs and mozzarella after hackers gained access to freezers, turned their temperatures as high as 120 degrees and spoiled mounds of produce. The next day a wave of bomb threats landed in the email inboxes of airports and airlines across the continent. By Friday evening, the week had seen hackers access refrigerators at blood banks in France, 50 flights affected by claims of explosives on board, and similar bomb hoaxes sent to media groups, including Britain's Sky News. Several media outlets in Ireland evacuated newsrooms, some suspending live programming as staff exited buildings.

"It's a disgraceful attack on the media, on free media, and unfortunately, probably where it comes from, they don't really appreciate the importance of free media," said Kevin Bakhurst, head of Ireland's biggest broadcaster, RTÉ. So far, no states or groups have credibly claimed responsibility for the disruption, which for the most part, has proven more of an expensive nuisance than a true security threat…"
